

WORLD ASTHMA DAY: A MIRACLE REASON TO ACTIVATE EFFORTS

A. E. Bogomolov, S. V. Zaikov, G. L. Gumeniuk

Abstract. Bronchial asthma is among the most common noncommunicable diseases, which affects more than 300 million people around the world. The article describes the international initiative Open Access to scientific information and search engines to obtain it. These specialized Internet resources allow Ukrainian doctors to immediately and quickly receive up-to-date medical information in the workplace with a modern evidence base, without spending a lot of time and financial resources.

Key words: bronchial asthma, scientific information, open access, search.

Artemii Ye. Bogomolov

Candidate of medical science, associate professor

National Pirogov memorial medical university

Ukraine, 21000, Vinnytsya, Pirogova str., 56, e-mail: art.bogomolov@gmail.com

Asthma and Allergy, 2019, 2, P. 5–9.