

NON-INTENSIVE INFUSION THERAPY IN THE PRACTICE OF INTERNAL MEDICINE

V. Z. Netyazhenko, O. A. Galushko

Summary. The paper presents the modern principles of non-intensive fluid therapy, the basic syndrome, in which shows the use of infusion of funds characterized modern groups of solutions for intravenous therapy. The attention on the positive effects as well as to the possibility of adverse reactions to the introduction of intravenous fluids. The recommendations for programming rational and safe infusion therapy in the practice of internal medicine.

Keywords: non-intensive infusion therapy, internal medicine, adverse events.